THE TIMES AND TAFT.

Many men are trying to analyze what they are pleased to call the present social upheaval in America and out of the best of opinions it is not hard to draw the conclusion that the nation's individuals are merely returning to the old religious truths, concluding that there are standards greater than mere physical and financial prosperity, upon which any enduring prosperity must rest.

A sentiment is fermenting in this nation which when the children now in infancy come to face the world to earn a living, will give them better ideals of justice and fairness and of individual responsibility for the welfare of all humanity. This upheaval is the exclusive property of no men or class of men. Educated men and wealthy men, ignorant men and poor men, Republicans and Democrats, and blind and frenzied followers of the demagogues are recognizing that since the Civil War we've been going fast toward a tremendous accumulation of wealth, minus much that might be desired in character, in social justice, in purity and honesty and homely virtue. Presidents nor Congresses can change the heart of the people and the ideals of the people. That is and must be gradual and spontaneous. It is also irresistible. Neither this man nor that man can check or hasten its progress. Men can only try to interpret such a change.

There is little doubt that the nation has reached a crisis in its development. It needs at such time a man of calm temperament, and wisdom at the helm. Let changes be wrought constructively not destructively. Drop class hatred. The men who have given their blood to the business success of this country and have succeeded are entitled to consideration as well as those who have failed. They want evolution not revolution. The evolution such as President Taft represents.

It is ridiculous to suppose any men can block what is in the hearts of the people. The great Republican party whose principals have found favor with the people of the nation for a half century will certainly not try. It's supporters believe it best represents the desires in the hearts of most of all the people at this time for a careful, sane national government. A man with a club is not needed at this time, nor a man with pretty theories and no experience. President Taft, with the spirit of the best of the nation as his guide, will not fail. He has proven fit to interpret and put into effect the nation's present desires, born out of the so-called social upheaval. He should be re-elected.

A BETTER METROPOLIS.

Gambling once was one of man's legitimate pastimes when he wasn't wearing war paint and cracking the skulls of other men or killing game. The gambling lust is a survival of the old savage when women did all of the useful work. New York's Mayor, whatever may be thought of his attitude toward this Rosenthal case, uttered a truth when he said only the churches and the Sunday Schools can effectively stamp out gambling. New York can stamp out police grafters however and should be able to keep them stamped out, a fact Mayor Gaynor doesn't seem to have been much enthused about. And an honest police force can keep gambling with all its attendant villainy far below the surface, where it dare not and can not flourish as it has been flourishing in New York.

One great encouraging feature of the present situation in New York is that most of the people are against gambling. There is no doubt about that. The churches and Sunday Schools have traveled far since the days when men wore iron haberdashery and greeted their enemies with a meat axe. Governor Hughes demonstrated that fact in his successful campaign against race track gambling. Respectable New Yorkers may hope for a cleaner city than they have had in some years. They have discovered their own strength. With a police force faithfully representing them the forces of evil must be kept in check until righteousness prevails in even the hearts of the gunmen. New York City nor any other city in the country need be controlled by the vicious any longer than it takes for the people of homes and children and schools and churches to get together and tell their officials they want the law enforced and if they don't enforce it put men in office who will.

STEEL AND WOOL VETOES.

The New York Sun is not noticeably for Mr. Taft, but it frankly admits editorially that the recent wool and steel bills lowering the tariff on those products and vetoed by the President, were an "old comedy in politics." "They were not honestly economic." "They were shiftly political measures."

"Let the tariff be shaven and shorn as much as it can be or should be, with the proper regard for business and labor, but let the job be done by a single party, responsibly, soberly, deliberately, and not by improvisation, coalition and buncombe.

"Possibly the Democrats when ever they come to power will look upon tariff revision with less eagerness. At any rate we take it that business men will not weep if no disturbance is now precipitated."

SUMS IT UP.

Vice-President Sherman's speech of acceptance delivered at Utica on Wednesday concluded as follows:

"We ask that the Republican party and its candidates be tried upon the record of service and accomplishments. We near the end of President Taft's first term of service, with our government at amity with all foreign powers, amid domestic tranquility and with our people blessed by prosperity and abundance; our navy among the foremost of the world; our army in a high degree of excellence, our postal service, for the first time in its history, self-sustaining; the colossal dream of the centuries, an Isthmian Canal, almost a completed reality; our foreign and domestic commerce in a condition of activity, vigor and health, meeting the desires of the most optimistic, and every department of the government, rendering proper and efficient aid to law-abiding citizens in every calling. Confident that the American people are not yet willing to destroy and discard the constitution which has stood the test of more than a century; which was framed, expounded and upheld by the great men of the past, that they have not yet forgotten the direful result of the mistake of 1892, we calmly await the ides of November."

Mrs. Wolfe taught her first school at Westcolang, Pa. She then went to New York state and taught about three years. After that attended the Training Class at Port Jervis. She again returned home and taught in New York state, and all the time she kept studying until she obtained a state certificate. These three young ladies have always lived in Tusten and have never attended any school except the country school at this place, until they attended the Training Class. This shows that a good education can be obtained at a small country school. Each of these ladies earned the money to defray all expenses while at school and one of them assisted at home. What these ladies have accomplished can be done by others.

The Bradley House has a fine season of city guests which speaks well for Mr. and Mrs. Avery.

Mrs. A. M. Weil, of West Hoboken, is having a fine season at Lake Hill Cottage, which she leases for the summer. The house is new and very pleasantly located, overlooking the lake.

Grand View Farm, Edward Bornstein, proprietor, is overrun with gayety by its forty or more summer guests. Mr. and Mrs. Bornstein are popular caterers. Twelve or more additional rooms recently added to the house does not meet the demand for accommodations at this summer resort. It is one of the most healthful places in this section of the mountains and its accommodations are always in demand.

The long dining-room table was spread with the many good things prepared by the ladies of Cochecton Center, who never spare any pains to have plenty.

The large sitting room and parlors were occupied by the ladies of the Guild in exhibiting and selling their many fancy articles. The ham sandwiches were especially fine. Many thanks to Mr. Jacob Winand, of Narrowsburg, our popular meat man, who generously donated a large ham. The ladies of the Guild cleared a little over one hundred dollars and the church a little over fifty dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Lighte, of New York City, the parties who presented the people of Cochecton Center with the church bell and which was dedicated one year ago at their annual fair, were on the grounds and seemed to thoroughly enjoy being present.

Rev. K. M. Reynolds and wife, of Kenoza Lake, together with many from Lake Huntington and Lava, helped to swell the numbers and the treasury. There is no doubt if it hadn't been for the rain there would have been over two hundred dollars cleared.

Paint
