MAYOR STEPHEN MAY 8AYS FUNDS NEEDED FOR HOUSING TO HELP GOLDEN AGERS

Mayor Stephen May said recently that the City Council has approved borrowing $270,000 to buy land for a new elderly housing project at North Goodman Street and Garson Avenue.

The Mayor said the plan calls for the construction of a 13-story building with 145 housing units (48 efficiency and 97 one-bedroom units) on the one-half acre site.

May said: "This project will take us one more stride towards our goal of 15,000 housing units for senior citizens during the decade of the 1970's. So far, about half those units have either been started, approved or are in process.

This is heartening progress for a city which has such large numbers of senior citizens. This represents a major element in the progressive and comprehensive program the City has mounted to meet the needs of its 40,000 senior citizens."

The Mayor said the City is proposing to buy options to the site from the Housing Corporation of America, clear the land and then sell it to the Urban Development Corporation—Greater Rochester, Inc., for development. Housing Corporation of America, is expected to construct the building.

May said this proposal has been approved by the Model Neighborhood Council and its Housing and Physical Development Task Force and the City Planning Commission.

The contract runs from Dec. 1, 1972, to November 30, 1973, and is for an indefinite quantity of photographic and audiovisual equipment.

Book On Dr. DuBois Raady

In 1910, W. E. B. DuBois left his position at Atlanta University to assume the editor-ship of the Crisis, the fledgling journal of the newly formed civil rights organization, the NAACP. In W. E. B. DuBois: "The Crisis Writings," to be published as a $1.25 original Fawcett Premier paperback in August, editor Daniel Walden presents a selection of Dr. DuBois' writings from The Crisis Magazine.

William Edward Burghardt DuBois was born in 1868, in Great Barrington, Mass. A renowned and innovative scholar and lecturer, his life was marked by an unwavering militance in pursuit of justice and equality for all people.

The Crisis Magazine which he edited for a quarter-century espoused the causes of racial consciousness and pride, pacifism, integration, and Pan-Africanism and courageously opposed justice, colonialism, biogotry, religious hypocrisy, violence and economic exploitation.

Editor Daniel Walden has worked with the NAACP, CORE and the ACUL. During the past year he has been one of the six members of the National American Studies faculty team visiting Black colleges in the South, to help them evaluate their interdisciplinary programs.

Dr. Walden is the author of "American Reform: The Ambitious Legacy, on Being Black (with Charles Davis) and "Readings in American Nationalism (with Hans Kohn)."

He has also written many magazine articles which have appeared in scholarly journals. In addition to writing, Dr. Walden teaches at Penn State.

VA Reports On HB Pressure

The Veterans Administration has answered the call issued at the National Conference of the Status of Health in the Black Community by beginning the nation's first "depth screening" for high blood pressure, Dr. Howard W. Kenney of VA's Washington, D. C., Central Office said recently.

Dr. Kenny, director of VA's 13-state New England and Northeastern Medical Region, pointed out that high blood pressure and the resulting strokes and heart attacks are the main health problem of the Black community.

Between the ages of 25-44, high blood pressure kills 15.5 times as many Black males as whites and 17 times as many females," he said.

The Conference, held at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., called for nationwide screening for early detection of those with high blood pressure and for better treatment of this disease by the medical profession generally, Dr. Kenney said.

Sixteen VA hospitals are starting in depth screening and follow-up of all their patients for hypertension, and other VA hospitals will join the program as experience is gained. Dr. Kenney said more than one blood pressure check for each person will be required to locate those who need treatment.

VA's role in dealing with this special medical problem, Dr. Kerney explained, grew out of a six year research study of hypertension among VA patients that was conducted cooperatively among 17 VA hospitals. Almost 17 percent of the patients in VA's 167 hospitals are Black.

Space Age Blanket Boon to Boatsmen

Lightweight insulator useful for all-weather protection.

While proponents and opponents of space exploration continue their endless debate on the merits of lunar and interplanetary travel, the useful new products derived from space technology keep on proliferating. One of the most versatile of these products is the SPACE® sportsman's blanket, which is made of a lightweight super-insulating material originally developed to protect astronauts and sensitive equipment against extreme conditions.

Produced by Thermos®, the well-known manufacturer of vacuum bottles and camping gear, the SPACE blanket is made of a laminate consisting of a fiber scrim and thin sheets of aluminum coated with a non-porous mylar film. It retains or reflects heat and is completely weatherproof, making it ideal for use by boatsmen as a poncho, tarp or cockpit sunshade/rain cover. For this latter application, grommeted, rust-proof corners permit the SPACE blanket to be thrown over a boom and secured to a railing or cleat. The blanket also serves as a reflector for tanning purposes and reflects radar for emergency signaling as well.

Campers, hunters, fishermen and skiers have found the blanket to be equally adaptable as a ground cloth, tent-fly, duck blind, wind break, ski-lift lap robe and virtually anywhere a lightweight insulator is needed.

Available in three colors, the 4'6" x 7' SPACE sportsman's blanket weighs 12 ounces and folds compactly into a convenient carrying pouch which can be stowed away or carried in a coat pocket. It is distributed nationally through leading sporting goods and hardware retailers.
