

14 days
until Spring
Break!!

The Press

Volume XIX Number 16 • STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, COLLEGE AT CORTLAND • February 23, 1990

Washington columnist to speak for Black History Month

By College Relations
Special to the Press

Dorothy Gilliam, a columnist for the Washington Post, will be the featured speaker during Cortland College's observance of Black History Month. She will address the topic of "Minorities in Journalism" at 5 p.m. reception, Feb. 26, in the Corey Union Exhibition Lounge and will lecture on the topic "King's Legacy-- Where We Are; Would He Like It?" at 8 p.m. in the Brockway Hall Lounge that same day.

Gilliam, a native of Memphis and a graduate of Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., and the Columbia University School of Journalism, has been with The Post off and on since 1961. She began as a reporter on the metropolitan desk and distinguished herself as one of the few black, women reporters to report on events of the civil rights movement of the sixties.

During the late 1960's, she reported for the Washington television station, served as an associate editor for JET and EBONY magazines and was associate director of information at Tuskegee Institute.

In 1972, Gilliam returned to The Post as an assistant editor of the Style section, and in 1979 she was given the twice-weekly column she now writes.

Gilliam is the author of

"Paul Robeson, All American" which was published by New Republic Books in 1976, and she has won a number of awards and citations for her work in journalism. Among them are the Ann O'Hare McCormick Award from the New York Newspaper Woman's Club and the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism Alumni of the Year Award.

Gilliam is a former Woodrow Wilson Fellow and board member of the Fund for Investigative Journalism. She also chairs the Institute for Journalism Education, a national organization which promotes opportunities for multi-cultural students in journalism.

Hundreds of students to rally in Albany next weekend

Special to the Press

NYPIRG announced that hundreds of student activists from around the state will be gathering in Albany on March 2, 3, and 4 for a student action conference and environmental rally.

The conference will contain strategy sessions, skills workshops, issue presentations and will include a massive rally on the steps of the Capitol building.

"Twenty years ago students organized Earth Day celebrations across America and demanded environmental reforms," said Margaret Peckham, NYPIRG's chairperson and a student at Hunter College. "We plan to make Earth Day 1990 the biggest environmental rally ever."

The conference will be co-hosted by the Student Environmental Action Coalition (SEAC). A $15 dollar conference fee includes transportation, housing and three meals. NYPIRG works on a variety of environmental and consumer issues. Students interested in attending should contact the NYPIRG office at 753-4815.

Framingham, Mass. Academic programming, policy, and planning.

PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE
*Showboat Hotel/Casino, New Jersey, 1985-86

*Director, Governmental Relations, City of Atlantic City, New Jersey, 1978-84

*City Administrator, 1983-84 (2100 employees, 5 unions)

*Acting Director, Public Works/Parks & Properties, 1982-83

*Director, Planning/Research, Housing, 1980-82

*Executive Director, Atlantic City Rehabilitation & Development, 1979-80

*Deputy Director, Department of Planning & Development, 1978-79

*Stockton State College, Pomona, New Jersey, 1973-77

*Assistant Dean, General Studies, 1975-77

*Assistant Professor, Philosophy and Religion, 1973-75.

All of the members of the College community are encouraged to attend.

Interviews scheduled for position of Provost's assistant/associate

By College Relations
Special to the Press

Two candidates for the position of Assistant/Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs have been invited to Cortland for on-campus interviews next week. Information about the candidates and the times at which open meetings have been scheduled so they may talk with members of the College community appear below.

Faculty, staff and student reactions will be welcomed, according to members of the Search Committee. The committee will not consider anonymous reactions and will not consider petitions but individuals wishing not to have their views identified may send their reactions with a cover letter requesting that their reactions be presented to the committee without the writer being identified.

Reactions should be sent to the Search Committee Chair, Melvyn King, in care of the President's Office, Miller Administration Building, no later than Monday, Feb. 26.

Members of the Search Committee are Leonard Cohen, library; Sheila Cohen, education; Robert Isaf, education; Lorraine Khouri, physical education; Melvyn King, psychology; Daniel Maloney Hahn, advisement; Rita McLaughlin, residence life; Brian Rivest, biological sciences; John Ryder, philosophy; C. Jane Snell, professional studies; Debi Tracy, student representative; and Beatrix Valles, student representative.

OPEN MEETING DATES AND TIMES

H. STEPHEN STRAIGHT

Mon., Feb. 19
11 to 11:45 a.m.- Old Main Faculty Staff Lounge

1:15 to 2:15 p.m.- Park Center Faculty Lounge

A summary of H. Stephen Straight's education and experience follows:

EDUCATION

*PhD, The University of Chicago, 1972, Linguistics

*MA, The University of Chicago, 1970, Linguistics

*BA, The University of Michigan, 1965, English and American Literature

EMPLOYMENT

(Continuous at Harper College/SUNY Center at Binghamton since 1970)

*1990- Director, Program in Linguistics

*1983- Associate Professor of Linguistics (addition to title)

*1978- Associate Professor of Anthropology

*1986-88- Associate Dean for Academic Affairs (short-term interim appointment)

*1980-85- Director of Graduate

Studies, Department of Anthropology

*1981- Acting Chair, Department of Anthropology

*1979-80- Senior Fulbright Lecturer in Psycholinguistics and Linguistic Theory, Department of English,

University of Bucharest, Romania

*1973-78- Assistant Professor of Anthropology

*1970-73- Instructor in Anthropology

HUBERT MAULTSBY

Wed., Feb. 21

11 to 11:15 a.m.- Park Center Faculty Lounge

1:30 to 2:15 p.m.- Old Main Faculty-Staff Lounge

A summary of Hubert Maultsby's education and experience follows:

EDUCATION

*Harvard University, Master's Degree in Administration, 1987

*Drew University, PhD, 1974

*The Catholic University of America, Graduate Degree in Religion, 1968

*Seton Hall University, Bachelor's Degree in Classical Languages and Philosophy, 1964

PRESENT POSITION

*Research Associate, Philosophy of Education Research Center, Harvard University, (1986-present)

*Consultant to the president (full-time), Framingham State College,

The Pizza Hut 3-on-3 Co-ed basketball tournament to benefit the United States Association for Blind Athletes scheduled for February 23 and 24 has been cancelled due to lack of student participation.

"Write a letter, save a life"

By Andrea Crowe
Staff Writer

To many Cortland students "Write a letter, save a life" probably does not sound familiar. It happens to be the slogan for one of the newest organizations on campus, Amnesty International.

Amnesty has been present on the campus since September, 1989, and has become a recognized club by CCSA this semester.

Amnesty is an impartial, world-wide organization and can be found on many campus and in many communities around the world. SUNY Cortland is the newest location.

Their mandate contains three major goals. The first is the main focus; to gain the release of prisoners. (Con't AMNESTY p.3)

Public Safety internships available

By Lisa Bradway
news editor

The Public Safety department has an internship program available.

This semester there are two interns: a criminal justice major from Tompkins Cortland Community College (TC3) and a sociology major from the State University College at Cortland. Credit is received for these internships.

Interns ride with officers and go on walking patrol to gain experience. They are also allowed to perform minor duties: they assist officers in staking out parking lots for thefts and also go on calls.

Students write performance papers at the end of the semester and Public Safety also evaluates the interns.

This internship program has been available for over twelve years. Interns have gotten jobs with Public Safety after graduation.

For further information about the internship program, contact Dr. Stuart Draub of Cortland College or Professor James Nichols of TC3.

Incident reports for the weekend of Feb. 16 to Feb. 18 are as follows:

Fri, Feb. 16: A fire extinguisher was discharged in Fitzgerald Hall. A fire alarm box cover was broken in Tower B.

A door handle was removed from a stairway door in Tower B.

Sat., Feb. 17: The Residence Life sign in front of Van Hoesen was destroyed. An exit sign on the third floor of Bishop Hall was broken.

Sun., Feb. 18: A pool table was damaged in Alger Hall when someone cut up the cloth cover.

