Emergency Squad

Students dedicated to helping students

By Michelle Kennedy
Staff Writer

Should we call an ambulance? That can be a frightening question. A call could result in an embarrassing situation. Not calling could result in tragedy.

Luckily for Cortland students, there is a simple answer. The Cortland State Emergency Squad is a First Aid organization made up of students dedicated to helping students.

The Emergency Squad was first established in 1981 and started out small. While working out of an office in a Brockway Hall bathroom, the 12 members had to answer all calls on foot.

"Before getting a van, we'd spend the night running around campus with 60 pounds of equipment," said Tom Walsh, assistant director of operations.

The Emergency Squad moved its office into Winchell Hall and its membership reached a high of 55. In 1984, it relocated to Van Hoesen, where it still operates today.

The Emergency Squad is presently seeking volunteers to join its team. It now consists of 22 members who cover shifts in a 24-hour-a-day operation.

"We desperately need people—we have openings for everything from office work to drivers," said Walsh.

In addition to the decline in members, Walsh also said there has been a drop in emergency calls. One reason for this may be the change in the alcohol laws in January.

Walsh does not believe the number of emergencies has decreased, but that students are afraid to call the Emergency Squad.

"Students need to know that everything we do and say is confidential," said Walsh.

The Cortland State Emergency Squad ran 204 calls last semester and has run 90 calls so far this semester. Student involvement is one factor that will keep the Emergency Squad strong.

"Come down and see what we do... it's the one place you can make a difference," said Walsh.

The Emergency Squad number is x4111, the business number x4112.

Instructor fired for claiming Holocaust Jewish myth

A history instructor has been fired for teaching his class that the Holocaust never occurred.

Donald Dean Hiner, a part-time instructor at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis (IUPUI), was dismissed for lecturing that the Holocaust is a Jewish myth, and asserting that "none of it makes sense unless you look at it from the prospect of Israel getting a lot of wealth from this story."

The Simon Wiesenthal Center, a Los Angeles-based organization dedicated to teaching about the Holocaust, hailed the university's decision.

"We are deeply gratified at the university's swift and proper action," said Rabbi Abraham Cooper, associate dean of the center. "This decision reinforces the commitment of academic integrity and the pursuit of truth, while striking a blow against bigotry which masquerades as scholarship."

Rene Arbuckle, an IUPUI sophomore, taped Hiner's February 9 lecture and turned it over to school administrators.

Hiner denies he is anti-Semitic, saying he just attempted to teach another school of thought.

"I do not consider myself a revisionist," he told The Indianapolis News.

A few fringe political groups trying to concoct a historical rationale for anti-Semitism have simply denied the Holocaust ever happened. Six million Jews, dissidents, Catholics, Gypsies and other innocents died in German concentration camps during World War II.

Short of evidence for their assertion, they lately have begun calling themselves "revisionists," borrowing the name from a scholarly, widely respected, research-oriented group of historians that during the 1960s and '70s exposed a dark underside of American history.

Anti-Semitic groups also have tried dressing the charge in a cloak of academic respectability by making the German-American National Political Action Committee (GAN-PAC), a Washington, D.C.-based group that says the Holocaust never happened, was left under the door of Stanford University's Hillel Foundation.

Hans Schmidt, GAN-PAC's chairman, told the student newspaper, the Stanford Daily, that "Holocaust studies is based on lies."

More recently, fliers distributed by the Church of Jesus Christ Christian at East Texas State University in November claimed the Holocaust never happened, but is widely reported because Jews supposedly control American media.

"No record of any kind has ever been found pertaining to the gassing of Jews, homosexuals, Gypsies, criminals or anyone else," the pamphlet read. "The Zionist Jews have complete control of television and the printed page, and, consequently, our politicians."

Working in the Field Studies Office for the past three years has greatly influenced my life professionally, academically and socially. I will bring competency, organization, effective communication skills and a high degree of professionalism with me throughout the rest of my college and professional career because of my experiences with this office. I have my employer, Peg Corey, and the other members of the office to thank for their contributions to the professional and social enrichment that I have attained through working with them.
