the leading rails and Atlantic Refining in the oils.

Heavy trading took place in Baltimore & Ohio which opened on a block of 10,000 shares. New York Central rose to a new peak at 221 up 2¾ points. Pennsylvania did the same, touching 90½ up 1¼ and Missouri-Kansas-Texas got out or any early slump to rise to a further peak at 58⅛ up ⅝ from the previous close.

In the afternoon more profit-taking came into the market. Steel was forced down more than a point from its early record high while Mineral Electric broke 3 points net. Copper shares broke from one to two points, the most severe loss being sustained by American Smelting.

On the reaction the market met substantial support and special issues continued to gain.

1:30 P. M. prices were strong.

THE BUCKET SHOP

By ALLISTON CRAGG

This article is one of a series by Mr. Cragg. He explains in detail the strange and mysterious intricacies of that seat of destiny the New York Stock Exchange. The complicated procedure by which fortunes are made and lost is here laid bare and made understandable for the layman. Mr. Cragg with his expert knowledge of exchange practices and long experience writes in a fascinating and enlightening way about this greatest of all American institutions.

Though the stock exchanges of the country, and Federal and local authorities have waged unceasing war on the "bucket shops" and are gradually eliminating them, the bucketing of orders is still carried on under cover of various clever evasions and disguises.

The Bucket shop, as distinguished from the legitimate brokerage office where only the actual buying and selling of securities are engaged in, is a fictitious broker's office where the customers merely bet on the rise or fall in prices of stocks or commodities. The stock is never either bought or sold. The legitimate brokerage office transmits its orders to the great exchanges of the country where they are properly executed. A bucket shop deal begins and ends in the bucket shop, the stock never having been owned by the customer whose order to buy or sell is only a bet that the market will move in his favor.

The bucket shop, whatever, its guise, is an outright gambling institution. As in any organized gambling, the odds are all against the victim. He is at a disadvantage from the moment that he lays down his money, and in the case of the bucket shop the starting handicap may be increased by the dishonest tricks of the fictitious broker. The real market may be manipulated to close-out the bettor. Especially in the past false quotations have been used for this purpose. In the event of a situation in which a number of patrons might actually be winning, the "bank" may "break", or in other words, further operations may be suddenly suspended.

In the old days, and it is probably still true where the bucket shop manages to exist, the so-called $10 stock trade was a favorite among the bucket shop patrons. Ten dollars was paid in at the "order" window as "margin" for the purpose of "buying" ten shares of a selected stock, that is, betting that the price of a certain stock would rise or fall as previously decided. The bucketeers commission—house charge in ordinary gambling parlance—was on the basis of ⅛ point (25c) per share, or $2.50 for the ten shares, so that the customer started out with a 25 per cent handicap, his $10 representing only $7.50 in margin. If his bet was on a stock quoted at $100, and it declined to 99¾, his $7.50 margin was wiped out, and he lost his $10. The remaining quarter went to the "broker."

The stock would have to advance to 101¼ before the customer could win $10. He was really betting that the stock would advance to 101¼ before it declined to 99¾, or that it would advance a point and a quarter or 1.25 before it dropped three-quarters of a point or 75, which further increased the odds against him. The sucker, in the good old army manner, was given much less than an even break.

Perhaps the most effective move ever made in the constant effort to eliminate bucket shops, is the action taken by the Quotation Committee of the Stock Exchange. The stock ticker was a necessary part of bucket shop equipment since these places pretended to deal in listed stocks and betting was based on their prices. The Quotation Committee, in control of the handling of quotations and use of the ticker, ruled to permit ticker installation only by legitimate and approved individuals or firms and thus stopped its fraudulent use by bucket shops.

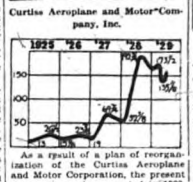
STOCK-A-DAY

Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, Inc.



As a result of a plan of reorganization of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation, the present company was incorporated in 1923. The company owns stock in six aviation companies all of which bear the Curtiss name in conjunction with the other distinguishing titles. The company has two factories, one at Buffalo with a capacity of 65 aeroplane engines a day and 200 planes a month and one at Garden City, L. I., with a capacity of 100 planes a month. Curtiss field formerly owned has been sold but part of this field may be used under the terms of sale as a flying field by the Curtiss company. A new plant at Buffalo will be in commission shortly. The company also has purchased land for fields and flying schools at Valley Stream, L. I., and Raleigh, N. C.

Earnings have grown rapidly since 1926, jumping from $413,317 in that year to $794,148 in 1927 and $871,081 in 1928. That latter item did not include profit on export business. If it had the total would have been $1,515,732.

There is no funded debt, and capital stock outstanding consists of 348,896 shares of no par common. The entire issue of 7 per cent. preferred stock was called for redemption June 6, 1928, at $141.50 a share which included unpaid dividends. The current dividend rate on the capital stock is $1 a share annually payable semi annually.

As of Jan 1, 1929 total current assets were $7,497,209, current liabilities totaled $940,107 and net working capital was $6,557,102. Book value applicable to the capital stock outstanding amounted to $30.73 a share.

SUES FOR $25,000

In papers filed here today, it is alleged that Lena Ella Cohen, as the owner of a tenement house at 34 Townsend street, Port Chester, failed properly to repair and adequately light the stairs leading from that house to the street, and as a result, one of her tenants, Mrs. Bessie Grodnisky, fell and received injuries which may become permanent. Mrs. Grodnisky, through her attorney, Thomas J. O'Neill of White Plains, is suing for $25,000 for her injuries.

DEMOCRATS MAKE PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Organize General Committee at Yonkers Sessiop to Direct Fall Activities; Plan Headquarters Here

A general campaign committee to direct the coming races in the election this fall was organized at a meeting in Yonkers last night of Democratic city and town chairmen and active leaders of the party, County Chairman Harry T. Foley announced today. Harry Prye of Yonkers was elected chairman, and Bernard Reardon, also of Yonkers, secretary.

Plans to establish campaign headquarters in White Plains some time during the summer were also discussed. It was agreed that until the ticket was named, there would be a working headquarters in Yonkers under the direction of Chairman Foley.

Former County udge Walter G. C. Otto, New Rochelle, was also named as one of the directors of the new committee which Mr. Foley said was formed for the purpose of directing the campaigns of the various county candidates.

At a meeting of the Democrats of the town of Greenburgh held in Hastings on Monday night, organization plans were discussed and possible candidates were submitted. More than 200 party members attended the meeting, Mr. Foley said. Former President Thomas W. Goodwin presided.

TWO FIRES

Blaze in Home of D. Burnett; Lumber Pile Burns; Losses Are Small

Fire apparatus was called out early last night to two blazes, the first reported this week. Neither was serious and damag was slight.

An alarm from Box 35, Oakwood avenue and Prospect street brought four pieces of apparatus up to the home of D. Burnett, 2 Prospect street at 6:40 p. m. An oil cloth hanging on the wall behind a gas stove had become ignited and scorched the wall and door sill.

A pile of lumber in the rear of 17 Mott street caught fire from an unknown cause at 7:30 p. m. It was extinguished before the blaze had gained any headway. The lumber belonged to Edward Scott, 6 William street.

"NOT NICE"

17-Year-Old Girl Found Strolling Along Street at 4:30; "One Too Many"

"It isn't nice for a 17-year-old girl to get drunk and stroll along the streets of this city at 4:30 in the morning," Judge Geary said this morning, admonishing a young girl who had "one too many" on a party here last night.

"But all the girls do it, Your Honor," the girl replied, "and I don't think it's fair that I should be the one to be caught. I was going home to New York anyway."

"Then start right now and set a record by getting out of town in ten minutes or you will receive an urgent invitation to become the guest of the county for ten days."

She did.
