Townsend High Scorer at Cross River Trap Shoot

Opening of New McClure Traps Attended by Large Crowd of Game Association Members

THE Southern New York Fish and Game Association trap shooters held their first shoot of the season yesterday at McClure's new traps at Cross River. E. T. Townsend of White Plains won the contest for the men with a high score of 94 out of 100. McClure's new layout is situated on the concrete road between Pourridge and the Ridgefield road and is one of the finest sets of traps in this section. It is located on one of the highest hills in the county so that the skyline is perfect for the sport, with no intervening landscape to disconcert the gunners.

New Golf Links for Northern Westchester County

Map of the new 18-hole golf course, just completed at Lawrence Farms, between Mount Kisco and Chappaqua.

Designed by Tom Whitton, this golf course has 18 holes and is a splendid greens and fairways have all been seeded provided for play next spring.

The course lies in a large natural depression between wooded hills, the magnificent trees and bushes making the scene of golf battles to come, a very beautiful one.

The site of the course comprises some 115 acres and the large reservation set aside for sports on Lawrence Farms, the length of holes aggregating 6,000 yards was a part of it.

The club house of the Lawrence Farms Golf Club is now being constructed near the first tee.

Although the club is a private one and has been formed especially for the residents on Lawrence Farms estates and those living upon adjacent estates, membership by election will also be open.

ELKS BOWLERS LOSE CONTEST TO ALLPORTS

Pointing for Saturday's invasion of New York, Georgia's Bulldogs went through a three-hour drill Tuesday—the final intensive practice before departure for the game with 117. U. Coach Harry Mehm concentrated on a forward pass offense and impressed his team with the importance of a victory against the Virginia at the early season conquest of Abbe Booth and Yale.

Bill fell the effects of his hard game at Cornell, Columbia's squad held a light drill Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's contest with Colgate. Tom Mosser, a sophomore, appears to have permanently replaced the veteran Scott at halfback. Mosser's first play against Cornell made him the favorite for the berth which Scott has held for two seasons.

The problem of deciding on a starting line-up for Saturday's game with Georgia at Yankee Stadium today occupied Coach Mehm of New York University. Mehm was made necessary by the barring of Dave Myers, colored quarterback, and an injury which will prevent Charlie Marshall, star end, from getting into the game.

Coach Bill Roper sent Princeton's reserves through a brief drill yesterday as the varsity continued their vacation. The regulars will return to practice today with all the men except Bennett in shape to take part against Lehigh Saturday.

Able Booth played with the Yale seconds today as Coach Mal Stevens sent his squad through a long drill preparatory to Saturday's intercollegiate clash with Maryland. Both fell played quarter on the varsity and Hoot Ellis, teamed with Both in the scrum line-up.

Secret practice was held at Harvard Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's game with Michigan at Ann Arbor. Coach Horrocks is endeavoring to speed up the long drill and improve the forward passing which has produced previous victories.

Dartmouth's reserves held a long practice Tuesday while the officers played who saw most of the action against Yale were given an additional day's rest. It is probable that many of the reserves will start in Saturday's game with Brown.

Defensive drill against Illinois was demonstrated by the scrum line-up of the varsity Tuesday. Frequent shifts were made in the varsity line in a forward pass drill. The forward pass for Saturday's game at Urbana.

GIANTS WIN EASILY Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6 (UPI)—Eugene Friedman's passing gave the New York Giants a 4 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles today. The Giants scored 25 of their points in the second quarter and were held scoreless in the remainder of the half.

Local Backfield Heavier But Line Lighter In Game

White Plains Lacks Perfect Co-ordination to Carry Them Through; New Rochelle Has It.

ACCURATE statistics show that the reported tremendous weight advantage held by the Mount Vernon team over the White Plains team is far from correct. The statement that Mount Vernon outweighed the Tigers twenty pounds per man dwindles down to an actual five-pound per man advantage in the light of cold figures. The White Plains team averaged slightly over 160 pounds while the Mount Vernon team averaged exactly 165. In the line, however, Mount Vernon did hold a greater weight advantage, but this, too, is exactly half of what the report said. White Plains line averaged 159 pounds and Mount Vernon's 169.

In the backfield White Plains hold an advantage, which may surprise many. Keegan, Hayes, Glass and Medeville averaged 162 while Carideo, Hagen, Wilkenson and Caidan averaged 157.

The great advantage Mount Vernon was able to make capital of was its weight was that they had a more compact line. The Mount Vernon presented a solid front with no weak spots. The White Plains had a spotty line composed of a 180 pound tackle next to a 160 pound guard and a 170 pound tackle next to a 138 pound end. This discrepancy in weight makes for a heavy team, even though there are heavier men in it than in the opposition.

Light Men Good But in spite of that, all football history shows that weight is not for itself a truly great player, even in the line. Some of the great backs are small, light men and several of the lineemen whose names have gone down in history are also comparatively midsize.

Little Johnny Pos, of Princeton, was an example. And now the name of Booth is on every tongue. He is lighter than any of the great backs of the game, even though there are heavier men in it than in the opposition.

Perfect Combination They are not so great individual stars as their record will lead one to believe, but Coach McKenna has been lucky in finding in them the perfect combination which functions like a well oiled machine. All of them are good in their own right. But when they get together they have the added advantage of the group playing which increases individual ability and leads, when starts that into the backfield.

When Martin has the ball, the team will cover the other side for him. When Morton has it, Martin is right there with the others and like a team that is a real team. With four men in the backfield, each able to do any job assigned, with average ability, the energy of the opposing team will be spread to cover them all instead of being able to concentrate on stopping one brilliant player.

Keegan has suffered because the opposition are watching out for him and take a chance that the others will not break away for a long run. Not that the other backs are not good. They are. Medeville and Glass played a fine game last week as did the others, but the vital spark of teamwork is somehow lacking. The drive, the punch, the push, the gas is missing from a good White Plains team.

It may be they will find themselves at the end of the season if they get that added bit of co-ordination which has been lacking, weight will mean nothing, prestige will mean nothing, experience will mean nothing.

If Coach Watters succeeds in instilling that, which has been trying for a long year, New Rochelle will not have an easy time winning Saturday, as they expect to now.

Team Work Necessary Teamwork is the other ingredient which carries a team over the top of the wave sooner than individual genius or any weight advantage. A team composed of mediocre players who have perfect co-ordination is more dangerous in the long run than a team of mediocre players who have perfect co-ordination.

The Mount Vernon backfield has no star in it as Coach Coffin, who is credited with that team all year, has said. Yet he stated that he believed they were as good as any set of backs he ever coached as a unit.

They proved that in the White Plains game.

500 CANINES ENTERED FOR KENNEL SHOW

Bridgeport Armory Will Be Scene of Dog Contest This Saturday Which Will Be Largest in N. Y. District.

The final analysis of the entries for the Neagath Valley Kennel Club show which is to be held at the State Armory, Bridgeport, Connecticut on Saturday, November 9, for the benefit of the Animal Rescue League shows the surprising entries of 500 dogs. It is not only the quality of them, but it is also the quantity of them. The bench show committee deserve great credit for the number of entries they have cornered. This is the largest show that has been held in the vicinity of New York in six months. The reason for this is that there is a good judging list, good prize money, and a hustling lot of officials. The show will be open from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m. The best dog in the show will be judged probably at about 8:30, Saturday evening.

There are 45 collies, from many of the best representatives of this intelligent breed entered. There were also many terriers, which are the only breed but what has shown a gain. Boston terriers are surprisingly good. There are 37 of these dogs, and the sensational winner at the Boston Terrier show on Sunday last, Champion Haggerty's Sensation Second is among the number.

This dog show is not only to be just a bench show, but is to be an educational one. No matter what breed spectators may be interested in, they will find typical specimens of that breed on the benches. Dr. James E. Hall, a judge, has drawn a wonderful entry for sporting dogs, pointers, setters, etc.

The superintendent of the show is Frank F. Dele, who is known to thousands of radio fans. Judging will start promptly at 11 o'clock with a short recess for luncheon and refreshments. The best dog in the show is decided. The armory is an ideal place for such a venture and the attendance unquestionably will be large.
