Sound Auction Bridge

ORDINARY RULES ARE FOR ORDINARY HANDS; NOT FOR EXTRAORDINARY HANDS

Auction Bidding

	1st Rd.	2nd Rd.	3rd Rd.
South	Pass	2♥	Pass
West	1♠	2♠	Pass
North	1♥	Pass	Pass
East	2♠	3♠

Contract Bidding

	1st Rd.	2nd Rd.	3rd Rd.
South	Pass	Pass	Pass
West	1♠	5♣
North	1♥	Pass
East	4♠	Pass

As has been frequently stated, rules of procedure, whether of bidding or play, unless especially stipulated to the contrary, are intended to cover normal situations only and therefore are not intended to cover abnormal situations, such as the one confronting West, following a pass by South, with the above hand.

In the Duplicate Contract Match in which this hand arose, many of the West players, following a pass by South, also passed, deeming the hand too weak to bid originally. In every instance where the West player passed, the hand was passed out and a game hand thrown away by West's failure to recognize that ordinary rules do not govern 5-5-3-0 combinations containing biddable values, even though they may not be sufficient to warrant an original bid according to the rules governing normal procedure.

Another point in respect to this hand is, that in but one instance did the East-West players arrive at a bid of five Clubs, and in such lone instance, West failed to make his contract, easily made if he but exhaust the adverse trumps and set his Spade suit.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South, pass; West, one Club; North, one Heart; East, two Clubs, there being no occasion to show own Miner suit when holding unique support for partner's bid. South assists North's Heart bid to two. West now shews his second suit by bidding two Spades. North passing, East carries West back to three Clubs concluding the bidding.

Contract: The contract bidding is the same as that given above except that, following East's jump bid to four Clubs, West bids five Clubs.

Salient Points of Play

North opens the Three of Hearts. The Dummy going down, West sees that he must lose two Spades and also one Club trick unless North holds the King. West, therefore, wins the first trick with the Ace of Hearts and leads the Queen of Clubs intending to let it run, unless covered by North. North, with but two Clubs, covers with the King. West winning with the Ace in Dummy, returns a Club, exhausting the adverse trumps. West next leads a small Spade to Dummy's Ten, which North wins with the Queen and leads a Diamond. West winning with Dummy's Ace, discards the Ten of Hearts thereon and leads the Ten of Spades. It will be observed that so played, West must make five-odd in Clubs, as he can lose but two Spade tricks.

That Body of Yours by JAMES W. BARTON M.D.

TONSILS AND HEART AILMENTS

As the tonsils cause most cases of rheumatism, and rheumatism causes most cases of heart disease, and heart disease causes most deaths, then the evidence is pretty clear that infected tonsils are dangerous from the health and from the life standpoint also.

And when you can get the records of an out-patient clinic treating rheumatic children, then you can do your own thinking on the matter. Dr. A. D. Fordyce has seen 340 rheumatic children at this clinic; 321 with apparently no heart ailment; 119 with a definite heart ailment but the heart was doing its work in a satisfactory manner; 41 with a definite heart ailment in which the heart was gradually failing. There were 9 with acute rheumatic fever and 16 who were born with heart ailment and these were not considered in the records as having real heart trouble. There were 9 deaths from rheumatic heart disease.

Thus of 515 cases with rheumatism 346 could be considered as suffering from no permanent heart ailment; 119 definitely had a permanent heart ailment but heart was doing its work well; 41 showed failing heart muscle and 9 had died.

In other words, 50 or 10 per cent had died or would die during childhood, and another 119 or 23 per cent were permanently crippled to a greater or less extent.

Dr. Fordyce lays great stress on the removal of infected tonsils. Of the 531 children, 182 had the tonsils removed and in 67 cases operation is likely to be performed.

Thus in 213 out of 540 children about 40 per cent of total, the removal of the tonsils was considered advisable.

Now what about operation when the youngster is suffering from rheumatism?" In none of the patients operated on did unfavorable symptoms develop from the operation, even when the rheumatism symptoms were quite active."

Now I think every parent can take these figures to heart.

Tonsils that are healthy even if large should not be removed, because they are of use to the system as a filter and to kill harmful organisms.

But infected tonsils are the forerunners of rheumatism and heart disease. Why have your youngster take a chance of being crippled, or dying with heart disease?

DAILY FASHION

By MADAME MADELEINE

TWO SMART DRESSES IN ONE MODEL

Afternoon dress in black picador. The corsage is trimmed with fine nervures, and there is a nervure skirt which may be worn or left off at will.

A very new effect is achieved in this afternoon dress of black picador. The corsage is trimmed with fine nervures, and there is on overskirt, quite separate from the dress proper, also of fine nervures, which may be worn or left off at will, according to how dressy you feel like being. The frock is complete without this overskirt of nervures, but not so elaborate. It achieves two dresses in one, the difference with and without being enormous. Where it is mounted on the other skirt, a belt conceals the hooking device.

THE "YELLOW PERIL"

Here is a phrase which is resurrected every so often by those who try to make personal capital out of the alleged threat of the yellow races—China and Japan—against Europe, America and the civilizations of both.

Familiar as the phrase sounds, it is not American in origin. Rather—and this may surprise many of our readers—it was coined by Emperor William II of Germany.

In that country it first took root, thence spreading throughout Europe and jumping the Atlantic to the United States.

THE HOUSEHOLD

By Lydia Lebaron Walker

THREE FORCES INJURIOUS TO HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS WITH HEAT STRESSED

Wear from usage is not the only cause for articles giving out. There are many destructive forces constantly at work. From these the homemaker has to protect her textiles, furniture, furnishings, china, pottery metals, and all household effects. Three of these forces are especially deleterious — heat, dirt and strain. Each will be considered, with reasons for their injurious effects. Today, heat is the subject.

Furniture allowed to remain too near an open fire as well as by radiators or stoves will be injured.

Great heat is destructive to furniture because it dries it too much, causing it to crack. It makes paint and varnish finishes blister and peel off. It dries glue until it flakes and loses its adhesive quality. It loosens screws and nails, because, when the wood dries, it shrinks, making the holes too large to grip nails and the necessary threads that hold in screws recede until they cease to fit.

Effect on Textiles

Heat is destructive to textiles by weakening the thread, structures. This is particularly noticeable in the disintegration of rayon and artificial silks made from various pulp mixtures and in silks given "body" by tin and other metals. Wool, by eliminating the slight natural oil it should retain is weakened, and cotton, linen and pure silk by the separating of the thread of gossamer fineness.

Slow Deterioration

In all of these deteriorations the process is so very light that all one can say is that the textile has "tendered." Since too great heat is known cause for such effect it is for the homemaker to guard against it and protect the things she values from wanton deterioration caused by neglect.

THE GIRL

Adolescent boys sometimes seem to oblige their whole nature in the presence of a girl. They lose all the crude gestures, rude speech, unwilling attitudes, lasiness and are seemingly changed as by magic. That is quite natural. It is the influence of the feminine nature upon the masculine one and is to be valued, not derided. Every time a boy practices the polite and amiable manners of begullement he acquires some little degree of growth spiritually, mentally, socially. Which is good for him and for society at large.

Mothers are usually very touchy about this attitude in their boys. Frequently they develop a bitter jealousy of the girl who seems to affect their son the most. "That girl," is a bone of contention between mother and son and often becomes the center of the force that disrupts a family.

"He will sit in his chair and see me clear the table, or carry coal up the stairs, or trot endlessly on errands about the house, but let that girl come around and he is all attention. He waits on me hand and foot. All for effect. The same thing with her.

"If she gets out of her chair he is standing ready to escort her across the room as if she were a cripple. She drops her handkerchief a dozen times an hour and he leaps to pick it up. She must get a birthday present and a Christmas present and what-not, but he couldn't tell you the birth date of a single member of the family this minute.

"And who is she anyway? There isn't anything extraordinary about her that I can see. She isn't any prettier than any other girl. She hasn't any talent. If it were not for her eyes and a trick of smiling she would be plain dumb. But he's right at her finger end. I wish she'd move a thousand miles from here.

What good? It is more than likely that if she were to move tonight there would be another girl, much the same, in her place next week. It is not so much this particular girl as it is GIRL that does this to the boy. She is the necessary stimulus to his growth. She fills a very important place in his life. She calls out his budding manliness. She calls him to struggle to evolve into a self-sustaining, self-supporting man. She calls to him to express his tenderness, his great understanding of a woman's place in a man's life. She is a great power for good if she IS good, and most girls are.

It never helps to call her "That Girl." Better not. Accept her as a matter of course. If the boy grows beyond her she will fall out of his life without any effort on your part. If he remains at her level, or they grow on together, all well and good. In any case, try to understand the function of "That Girl," and find every effort to have her assisted in helping the boy.

If you are certain that she is not good for the boy—and I'm put to it to know how you can be sure quietly as a serpent; let no trace of your work be seen, build a wall between them. But be very, very cautious lest you interfere with a highly essential phase of the boy's growth.

SCHOOL TALES

Pupils Enjoy Reading of "Brer Rabbit" and "Peter Pan" at Chatterton School

At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, 162 pupils of the Chatterton Avenue School were entertained for an hour with readings by Mrs. Louise G. Smith. She told them the following stories: "Brer Rabbit," "Pooh Bear," "Peter Pan," "Mrs. Ruggles' Lecture," and "How Jimmie Tended Baby."

HOLD BANKING BANNER

The 7B-3 class of Battle Avenue Junior High School captured the banking banner on November 11 when every member of the group deposited in the school savings account. The 8A class also reached the 100 per cent standard and the 7A group increased its standing to 92 per cent. These increased records combined with the perfect records that the three 9B classes have been maintaining for several weeks have raised the Junior High banking record to 92 per cent.

JR. STUDENT BOOK REPORTS

Book reports have been the source of spontaneous criticism on the part of Battle Avenue Junior High students of the English departments this term.

HELPED AT CHANGE OF LIFE

"I am going through the Change of Life. At times I would cry for hours. I got tired of going to the doctor so I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken the first bottle I began to get better. I have taken eight bottles now. I feel that it has saved my life, also doctor's bills. I work for a family of six, washing, cooking and do all my own work. People say I look like 25."—Mrs. Cora Callahan.

Mrs. P. C. Helming
221 E. 123rd St., New York City

"Lydia E. Pinkham did for me what doctors failed to do. When the Change of Life began I was very poorly. Now at 55 I do all my own work, attend two dances a week and it is hard to make people believe I am over 40. I never see a woman in ill health but I advocate your medicine because I know its value. Every woman should take it, not just for a month or two but until they have passed the critical period."—Mrs. P. C. Helming.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Andrew Jackson, No. 4.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

ANDREW JACKSON WAS STILL JUST A LITTLE FELLOW WHEN THE FULL TIDE OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR SWEPT THROUGH THE CAROLINAS. IN 1780 AN AMERICAN ARMY WAS SHUT UP IN CHARLESTON WHILE THE BACK COUNTRY WAS AT THE MERCY OF RAIDING PARTIES OF BRITISH DRAGOONS AND TORIES.

THOSE WERE STIRRING TIMES. THE PATRIOTS OF THE SCATTERED SETTLEMENTS IN THE VALLEY OF THE CATAWBA LIVED IN DAILY DREAD OF RAIDS. IN THE SPRING OF 1780 DESPERATE HORSEMEN OF TARLETON'S LEGION SWOOPED DOWN UPON WAXHAW AND BUTCHERED A HANDFUL OF AMERICANS THAT OPPOSED THEM.

A LITTLE LATER, WARNING CAME THAT RAIDERS DRAGOONS WERE COMING. THIS TIME THE VILLAGERS FLED WITH THEIR BELONGINGS TO THE HILLS. THEY RETURNED WHEN THE RAIDERS HAD GONE, TO FIND THEIR HORSES PILLAGED AND NOT A FEW BURNED.

THE ONLY EFFECT OF THESE RAIDS WAS TO STIFFEN THE SPIRIT OF RESISTANCE IN THE CAROLINIANS. ANDY JACKSON, WHO BY THIS TIME HAD PASSED HIS THIRTEENTH BIRTHDAY, CAME TO HATE THE SIGHT OF A REDCOAT.
