NEWBURGH FLORIST AND COMPANION ASPHYXIATED IN A GREENHOUSE

Max Pushman, a florist who lived in Union avenue, in the town of Newburgh, and Michael Cavigan, an engineer on a stone crusher on the Cocehston turnpike, were found dead in the former's greenhouse Saturday morning. Accidental asphyxiation from coal gas was the cause of death.

Pushman, while in town Friday night, picked up Cavigan, arriving home at about 11.45 o'clock. They went out to the greenhouse for a chat and sat within eight feet of the boiler. Pushman had evidently thrown on a quantity of coal without opening the flue, and then both fell asleep with the result that the hothouse was soon filled with gas and their death followed.

Mrs. Pushman arose early, not concerned over her husband because he frequently slept in the greenhouse, and after completing the chores about the place, opened the door of the boiler room of the greenhouse. There she saw the men apparently asleep.

Adam Sloan happened to be passing, and she hailed him. He examined the bodies and found that both were dead, and had been so for several hours. He notified Deputy Coroner Zillig, who ordered Pushman's body taken to the house. He took the other body to the morgue in Newburgh, the identification of Cavigan not being completed. It was thought that he was employed on the turnpike, and John Osborne, superintendent of the Empire State Road Construction Company, was communicated with. He went to Newburgh and positively identified the body as that of Cavigan, who comes from Catskill.

Max Pushman was 42 years old and was well known in Newburgh. He is survived by his widow and three brothers, William, Walter and Peter. He was formerly in the bakery business on the Cochecton turnpike.

Cavigan was 40 years old and leaves a widow. He also has a brother employed at the Saulpaul Hotel there. His body will be taken to Catskill for burial.

ARREST OF THREE ITALIANS.

Pike County Justice Dismisses Trio of Defendants Tuesday Morning.

Erie Police Officers R. N. Johnston and Frank Kelly overhauled three young Italians from Jersey City on a west-bound coal train near Hawley on Monday afternoon and brought them to this city on Erie train Two.

The trio were taken over to Matamoras, where they were locked up over night, and Tuesday morning they were arraigned before Justice A. W. Balch on the charge of the larceny of the dinner pails of the crew of Section Foreman Rinn at Mill Rift. The vagrants ate the contents of the pails and threw them down the river bank. They then beat it westward on a coal train.

After a hearing Justice Balch discharged the defendants and told them to get out of Pike county at once. He held that the cost to the tax-payers of keeping the prisoners in jail for petty offences did not warrant the expense, and that it was not a punishment to send them to the county jail.

The defendants gave their residence as Jersey City, and their names and ages as John Demio, 20 years old, Joseph Ricco, 22 years old, and Patrick Fatillo, 18 years old.
