ASHINGTON STATUE ASSOCIATION'S GIFT TO PARIS.

Behalf of Working Women—One New ork Woman's Work—College Women s Meeting—Don't Like the Electric ights—Female Dromios—Items.

n Wednesday morning the Washing- Statue association held an informal eting at the house of the president, Justice Field. There was a room- patriotic ladies bent upon carrying the plan, formed about two years o presenting a bronze statue of ington to France "in consideration e aid during the Revolution, and ourtesies since," as Mrs. Field pleas- put it. Already the society has a of over $6,000, which has been ed at interest. Some of this has n raised by subscriptions solicited by members of the society, and some the proceeds of a performance of Kaulvar," which the author, Mr. ie Mackaye, had given for the bene- of the fund. Miss Emma Thursby gave a concert, which added several ollars to the amount in hand. he meeting on Wednesday was es- ally to gain new recruits to further work. Among the ladies present were Payne, Mrs. Hearst, Mrs. Sherman, Swarts, Mrs. Jones and Miss Flor- Hayard. No definite sum has been d upon as the final amount to be , and no artist has yet been asked stimate the cost of the statue. The ers all agree that the work should done by an American artist, and that expense should be spared to secure a t which will be satisfactory as a of art. It was suggested that the en residents of Paris should be consulted as to the details of the plan, that they should be asked to con- te to the fund.—Kate Field's Wash- ton.

The feature was an address by Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer upon "The Present Opportunities of the New York Alumnæ." She said that the good influence of college training for women has manifested itself conspicuously in the elevated standards of education for girls in the public schools of Boston. She exhorted New York college women to be diligent to the same purpose.—New York World.

Too Much Light for Women.

A good many young club men have been wondering why the ladies whom they escort to the theatres and other evening amusements object, with singular unanimity, to going to a certain well known restaurant for a midnight supper. The cuisine and attendance there are universally praised, and the hotel is a very popular eating place with the ladies of society in the day time.

"I have been puzzled all winter over this," said a club man, "and only last night did I discover it. I had been to the opera with a very charming young woman. As we drove away after the play I suggested this restaurant for supper.

"'I don't like the Brunswick,' she said.

"I have asked a dozen ladies to explain to me this objection without success, and I repeated the inquiry. My companion looked at me with an amused and half wicked expression, and then said, with a toss of the head and a laugh:

"'You men are awfully stupid. Really, don't you know?'

"I reasserted my ignorance.

"'Never tell any one I told you,' replied my companion, 'but it is because the electric lights at the Brunswick are brighter than those of any other cafe in town.'

"What's that got to do with it? I never knew women objected to being seen when they are dressed up. I thought they liked it.'

"'They do, but the electric light is a spy on a woman's complexion. If she is painted, the electric light tells the story. If there be a hidden wrinkle, the light points it out. Now drive down to the ——house, and in the future don't ask your friends too many questions.'"—New York Sun.

Female Dromios.

Almost any day a certain two young ladies can be seen either shopping or walking. They have often attracted the attention of gentlemen on account of their strong resemblance. The young ladies are pretty, and have a good many admirers. Two young men in particular call on them regularly three times a week and pour their devotion into the ears of the twins.

Sometimes one calls without the other and frequently they would make awkward mistakes in getting hold of the wrong girl. In order to prevent these mistakes one of the young men gave his girl a pair of earrings of a certain make that could not be easily duplicated.

The other young man, not to be outdone, presented his girl with a handsome breastpin. The next evening they called at the house, feeling perfectly secure, and one went into the front parlor to wait for the object of his devotion, while the other remained in the hall. In the meantime the twins had exchanged the gifts they had received a short time before.

The young men did not notice the difference, and, consequently, each young man had the other's young lady. During the evening one of the young men "popped" the momentous question and was accepted on behalf of her sister. When her sister heard of this she said she would not have the proposer. Here the story rests. What will happen at the next meeting of the quartet will have to be guessed. It is safe to say, however, that some profuse explaining will have to be done.—Washington Critic.

Followed by Silk in Her Ears.

Miss Cyrena Alice Boyd, a young lady aged 19 years, whose parents reside in Yolo county, died under peculiar circumstances. A few weeks ago she was visiting friends in San Francisco, and while there had her ears pierced. She was very particular to urge that white silk be inserted in the puncture, but the thread finally used contained some coloring matter. A day or so after Miss Boyd returned to her parents' home in Yolo. In a few days she experienced soreness about the ears, but did not regard the matter as of much consequence. One day she and her sister happened to be out in a shower and Miss Boyd took cold. The effect of the exposure began to manifest itself in her ears, already swollen and sore. Then she became alarmed, and, upon her father's advice, she came to this city to secure medical attention. Her ears swelled rapidly, the swelling extending to her face, and finally one of her eyes was closed completely.

Erysipelas set in, blood poisoning followed, and then it was evident that her life was beyond the power of saving.—Sacramento Letter.

Her Case Different.

Addressing the Roumanian academy at Bucharest on its twenty-fifth anniversary, the Queen of Roumania said: "The honorable members of this academy some days ago requested me to speak a few words amid this assembly of learned men. I replied in the text of Holy Scripture: 'Women ought to keep silence in the church.' I have not changed my opinion today. I shall always maintain that the active life of woman ought not to go beyond the sacred interior of her home, and that the voice of woman sounds nowhere so sweetly musical as on her own hearthstone in the midst of her children. But God has enlarged and extended the limits of my domestic hearth. My dear country, with its host of lovely children, with the whole Roumanian people, is that not for me a precious hearth? If I have consented to speak before you today, I do so because I am really at home in the very midst of my children."—Exchange.

Rubber Silk.

An excellent new waterproof tissue is "rubber silk," which seems destined to answer many requirements. It is a thin and particularly flexible fabric of pale brown tint, having a slight but not disagreeably prominent "India rubber smell" about it. Exposed to cold air or cold water it does not harden or get brittle, while no reasonable degree of heat seems capable of making it sticky; indeed, we dipped it into hot water and held other pieces before a fire until it—the fabric, not the fire—began to "smoke" and was too hot for the hand to bear; but, even then, when folded up and subjected to pressure for some time the surface showed no inclination to adhere.

Although, as regards direct torsion and tension, rubber silk is both initially strong, and does not seem likely to become "rotten" when kept, it tears in either direction without difficulty, and may be divided into bandages or of any required size, without the aid of knives or scissors. In price it is quite cheap.—New York Telegram.

Cleaning House.

A lady protests in The Boston Globe against the custom of cleaning house at one certain time. "If a carpet becomes worn and dusty," she asks, "why may it not be renovated, be the season June or January? If paint is soiled and windows cloudy, what is the unwritten law which leaves them till a particular time for cleaning? Why must every bundle in the store room be unrolled for no which way the nap runs, as one disgusted masculine declared? When an article is required from some particular box why not sort its contents then and there instead of walking it all to the chaos of house cleaning? And why, above all things, select for that reign of terror the sweet spring time, when nature is putting on her robes of glory and the sunshine brings a baptism of life?"

Straw Hats for Women.

The sailor hat is again fashionable, if, it deed, it has ever gone out of fashion. Over a young, fair face it is certainly fascinating. Milliners trim it simply with a roll of velvet and a fold of white crepe for relief; a rosette of velvet and a quill thrust through it, or a plumed arrow with a golden tip. Blue straw sailors for yachting are trimmed with a scarf of white crepe or of plaid velvet knotted high on top, or with a cluster of three rosettes coming from the back and nearly covering the top of the crown. Large straw hats trimmed with tips are especially charming for driving, but cannot be worn at the seaside, where the dank salt air will wilt any plume in a few hours.—New York Tribune.

Look Out for Your Cellar.

The cellar is an important part of every house, and now is the time to examine it, have it thoroughly cleaned and aired, and let in as much sunlight as possible. Next, examine all the waterworks of your establishment. See that the drains are in good condition, and three times a week, during the hot weather, pour into every sink and basin in the house a gallon of hot water, in which a half teacup of copperas has been dissolved. Some women use carbolic acid, or have their sinks washed once a week with carbolic acid soap, but this odor is disagreeable to some persons that it cannot always be recommended.—New York Star.

One of the Latest Fads.

Nowadays young ladies seem to be trying their hands at all sorts of work and play. One of the last fads is an "auction party." A pretty girl assumes the auctioneer's hammer and sells as best she can a professional. Each guest is provided with a quaint little silk bag filled with small beans, which represent money. The auctioneer holds up a package of which no one knows the contents, and the bidders buy a "pig in a poke," which always proves to be some pretty ornament or bit of bric-a-brac.—New York World.

Girls Are the Better Swimmers.

A person has only to walk into any of the numerous swimming schools to find how small a proportion of the people know how to keep themselves to say nothing of swimming. Throughout the entire spring and summer these schools are filled, and the proprietors grow rich, as the expense are not large, though the tuition fees are. Among the frequenters of the seashore perhaps more girls know how to swim in proportion to the number of women that bathe than men.—Philadelphia Times.

Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney, to whom Louisa M. Alcott left her private papers, to be disposed of as she saw fit, and who wisely used them for the biography of her life long friend, is a widow, and lives in a quiet home in Jamaica Plain, a Boston suburb. Her home is a roomy old place, almost hidden in the heart of a forest of oak, and overrun with climbing plants and vines, which, as a friend says, are full of sweet odors and song birds.

Naja, daughter of the Russian painter Morozow, is about to be married, and will wear one of the most marvelous bridal dresses ever seen. Her father's friends and fellow artists have each painted an allegorical composition on the dress, which, when the beautiful owner is inside of it, will be a perfect walking art gallery.

A motion has been introduced into the Swedish parliament, with the object of raising the marriageable age of women in Sweden to 21 years. This would mean a vast difference from the present law, according to which a woman, or rather a girl, is allowed to marry at the early age of 15.

Parsons coming to the seaside should wait about thirty-six hours before taking any baths, in order to undergo a process of acclimation, as it were, so as not to upset their conditions of circulation by their change of residence and by the baths at the same time.

At the Stanley and African exhibition, London, young lady guides are in attendance to afford information to visitors when desired, and to show them, without charge, the various objects of interest in the exhibition.

NEIGHBORING VILLAGES.

Wolcott.

JUNE 24.—Since the weather has settled down to business the growing crops have taken a new hold on life, and are coming on finely. Barley seems to be somewhat damaged, while wheat and oats appear to be doing finely. Corn has but fairly got under good cultivation. Of the apple crop little can be said, as our best fruit growers say there are none, and peaches, plums and cherries are placed on the same list. Strawberries are doing well and there is a good prospect for a full crop of raspberries.—"Will" Gillett and Daniel Travers of Syracuse were in town over Monday.—Clayton Smith of Jamestown, Dak., left last night for his home in the West. This was his first visit to his native place since leaving it ten years since. To say that Clate and his friends, who are legion, enjoyed it hugely is putting it somewhat mild.—Dr. Smith now of Buffalo, left here Tuesday for the Thousand Islands where he intends to stay a few days with his bride to whom he was married at Corry, Pa., the past week.—Miss Minnie Peck and Miss Conway entertained friends from Syracuse over Sunday.—The Wolcott base ball club go to Sodus to-day to cross bats with a club there.—A merry-go-around on New Hartford street is raking in the nickles in great shape.—W. D. Campbell has a large force of men putting down Portland stone sidewalk. Among the last of amounts are W. G. Brewster, Frank Abbott, Al. Mills and the owner of the building occupied by Thatcher Bros. & Co., all of which named are business houses on the South side of Main street.—The new residence being built by H. L. Rumsey on Draper street is now nearly inclosed and when finished will be a fine place.—Dr. Draper has got one nearly as far along toward completion on the same street and nearly opposite.—"Uncle Jimmy" Wright, one of our citizens and formerly a very active boy, loses man is at present confined to the house and it is thought he cannot recover. The Baptist society have contracted for the brick for their new church and it is expected they will soon begin work.—Johnson & Northrop's residence is laying the foundation for their new evaporated fruit warehouse on Wednesday. It is to be 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, three stories high beside the basement, which will be nine feet high.

Williamstown.

JUNE 25.—Miss Ann C. Rork of New York city, came here with a seige suffering from typhoid fever a few weeks ago. The patient convalesced, but Miss Rork herself died of the same disease. Her funeral took place in St. Patrick's church Wednesday morning, last week. She was buried in the Catholic cemetery by Father McGraw. Miss Rork was 23 years old.

There was a large social of the Presbyterian ladies and society on Wednesday afternoon and evening of last week at the residence of H. H. White. The Presbyterian ladies will hold an ice cream lawn fete between the Presbyterian church, and Gunnison's store a large tent, Tuesday evening July first.

Peter Carroll is building a wagon shop near his residence.—Two new barns are under way, one for John Rogers, and the other for our Postmaster.—Examinations in graded school this week ends with Summer vacation.—Mr. Gough, lecturer of I. O. G. T., spoke to a large audience last Sunday evening.—The wife and daughter of Rev. O. S. Vincent went to Auburn Monday morning. They will remain about three weeks.

Lodge Seldon is visiting her sister at New Hartford, N. Y.—Wesley Rice on account of ill health left his work at Fels's Mills and is home to convalesce.—Miss Anice Smith, a teacher in Moody's school for young ladies near Northampton, Mass., is spending her vacation at her home in West Camden.—Our Catholic brethren give a strawberry festival and concert next Wednesday evening, July 2d, in White's hall.—Our cheese factory is receiving 16,000 lbs. of milk daily.

South Scriba,

JUNE 24.—Russel Hubbard, an old and respected resident of this place, died of pneumonia Friday morning, June 19, aged 79 years. Deceased was born in the town of Volney, near what is called "Hubbard's Schoolhouse," and has ever made his home in this vicinity. He was a very industrious man and has probably done as much as any other man to make the once dense forest in this town productive farms. In early life he married Miss Anna Adams and was the father of five children, the late Sarah Beardsley, Hattie Welch and Almon, all of whom are dead, and Ansel E. and Julia, who with his wife, survive him. The funeral occurred Sunday at the Mount Pleasant M. E. church, of which he was a member, the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Everett, officiating. A 16 months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Thomas was buried at North Volney Sunday. The Rev. R. E. Nesbitt of North Scriba, conducting the funeral.—A ten pound boy has come to live at Monroe Barlette.—The strawberry crop is not as good here as last year.—Grass is good but other crops are backward on account of wet weather.—The Mount Pleasant cheese factory is turning out twenty-six cheese daily, averaging 60 pounds each.
