Your State Income Tax

(Eighth and Last in a Series)

TROUBLE-SAVING TAX TIPS

If you need help in making out your New York State income tax return, you may get it from the nearest New York State District Tax Office.

Faulty or incomplete reporting makes it difficult or impossible to credit payments to proper accounts and often results in delays of refund checks because it slows down the State's tax processing machinery. It also causes unnecessary correspondence.

Here are 12 tax tips which will help you make sure your tax return is properly filled out. Check them before you sign your State tax return and file it.

1. Keep a copy of your Federal return — Complete your 1967 Federal income tax return before you fill in your State return. Type or print your name and address on your State return just the way you did on your Federal return.

2. Be sure to enter your county of residence in the space provided for it. Include your ZIP code number.

3. Enter your Social Security number and, if married, that of your spouse. Check to be sure the numbers are right.

4. Use Card Form IT-200 if you are eligible to use this form. When using the tax table for Card Form IT-200, use the total income line which corresponds to the total income (Line 4 on the Card Form). The 10% standard deduction is figured into the Card Form tax table.

5. Report all income as shown on your Federal return. If you file a Long Form State return, check the additions to and subtractions from Federal income for accuracy. Apply rates shown on Page 2 of the return to determine your tax.

6. Before filing your return, double-check your arithmetic—and be sure to attach a copy of your State Wage and Tax Statement (IT-2102) for each job you held.

7. Instead of completing the schedules on the back of Form IT-201, you may attach a copy of your Federal Form 1040 to your State return. Any Federal return mailed to any State District Tax Office will be presumed to have been submitted as part of your State income tax return and will be kept as part of your State tax records.

8. Attach to your return full payment for tax due of more than $1. You need not pay any tax due balance of $1 or less. A husband and wife filing separate returns on Form IT-208 showing a balance due on both returns may send one remittance for the total amount due on both returns. Make your check or money order payable to the "New York State Income Tax Bureau". Don't send cash or stamps. If you pay in cash at your district Tax Office you'll get a receipt.

9. Don't forget to sign your return. Both husband and wife must sign return filed on Form IT-208 or a joint return filed on Form IT-200 or IT-201. Your return does not have to be notarized.

10. File your return with the New York State District Tax Office serving the county where you live. (See back page of resident packet and front page of IT-200 instructions.) Taxpayers who do not have a residence in New York State should file their returns with the New York State Income Tax Bureau, State Campus, Albany, New York, 12226—the same address as the Albany District Office. Please use the return envelope provided by the Income Tax Bureau for mailing your returns and their essential attachments. Other correspondence with the Tax Department or its District Offices should be sent in other envelopes.

11. Refunds will be made within a reasonable time after filing to taxpayers entitled to them who have completed their returns correctly. Even with electronic help it takes time to process more than 7 million returns. If you write about your return, it may be taken out of the regular processing cycle and a further delay will result.

12. If you have any question about your return, visit or call your local State District Tax Office. You can get free help with your State income tax problems, and you can get tax forms for current or prior years. If you failed to file a State tax return for a former year, get the proper blank and file it when you submit your current return. Delay in filing a delinquent return will result in penalties and additional tax. . . And finally, be sure to file your return by the deadline — Monday, April 15, 1968.
