The Golden Goose.

A CHRISTMAS LEGEND OF THE EARLY DAYS OF NEW YORK.

In the year 1609, two hundred and seventy-two Dutch and eleven English men before the Mayflower landed the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock.

Henry Hudson, an Englishman, in command of a Dutch ship, discovered the magnificent harbor of New York.

and was the first European who navigated the beautiful river now known as the Hudson.

His name was given to the river, and his voyage up the river to the present site of Albany is too familiar to repeat.

It is sufficient to say that his discovery of the harbor, which he named New Netherlands, and the present site of New York, were the result of his voyage.

The growth of the colony in New Amsterdam was not rapid, so that in 1604, when his name was given to the harbor, the population was only five hundred people.

and speaking eighteen different languages; and now the population is 1,365,000, and all the known tongues of the world are spoken here.

At this time, the population of New Amsterdam was only five hundred people.
