Resentment over the one-day open season for shooting antlerless deer for the past successive years is being voiced by many hunters in this region, and some of their reactions are being received from readers of this column.

David Kennett, Knoxboro, writes: "Most deer hunters (sportsmen) hunt for the sport today and not to fill the refrigerator, so why kill off all our deer in one or two weeks?"

"I am a weekend hunter who enjoys deer hunting in the Adirondacks very much. I do not agree with the Conservation Department on open seasons for both sexes, as too many of us return each year empty-handed."

"Let's let the real sportsman have a good look at a buck deer with a rack he can see, and forget killing off all these small deer just for meat."

"Here is an example of what happened to me at Noblesboro a few years ago, when they had a doe season there. I was standing on a trail about 4 p. m. one day, waiting for my brother near the Miller tract."

"A young fellow came dragging something through the woods and it was so small I didn't think it was a deer. I said to him, 'What did you get? A wild dog or a wolf?'"

"He came closer and I looked closer. He had a very small yearling buck that couldn't have weighed 70 pounds. It would have made a nice buck in a year or two."

"The deer herds in the Southern Tier counties have been killed off by so-called hunters who slaughter the deer and each other, just for the sake of bringing home a deer. I have seen deer that were worthless because of many bullet holes in them. The open seasons encourage these so-called hunters to shoot at anything that moves, be it a deer, a cow, or even a member of their own party."

"I certainly hope the Conservation Department forgets about how much money they can take in by selling all of these licenses to people who only buy them to shoot either sex, and start giving us back our deer herds we had five, six, and seven years ago."

Spring must be getting near, fellows! The first fishing tackle catalog—chuck full of color, pictures and facts for fishermen—has reached our desk.

Those Heddon folks have done it again . . . and this time it's called Sonar—a new way to find fish and catch them. Actually, Sonar is the name of a lure with which you can catch anywhere—in 8 inches of water, or 60 feet. Think on this a moment—one lure to do all jobs of fishing, from top-water to bottom-bumping!

This little menace does it with three "magic holes" that causes it to run on the surface, at medium depths, or as deep as you have to go to touch bottom. Nothing complicated, just change your line tie from one hole to another.

With each lure comes a four-color booklet, with sketches and words telling exactly how to catch on this Sonar. Heddon's deluxe catalog includes a special introductory offer on this new lure, and you can get same by just clipping this column and sending it in together with two bits, the price of the catalog, to James Heddon's Sons, Dowagiac, Michigan.

Research Is Saving Hearts

There is hardly a day we do not publish an article reporting the death from heart disease of a nationally prominent person or a familiar figure in our community. Our obituary page is a constant reminder of the fact that the heart diseases are this nation's leading cause of death.

Figures published this year support that fact. They show that the death toll from diseases of the heart and blood vessels was more than 875,000 in the nation. Thus, these diseases accounted for more deaths than all other causes combined. Beyond this, statisticians estimate that some ten million people suffer from one or another of the many kinds of heart ailments.

In the face of these facts, it is heartening to learn from the statements of Heart Sunday officials of the Heart Association of Erie County that the picture is not as negative as often seems.

Great victories have been made through research, they report, many of them with the help of our contributions on Heart Sunday which supports the Heart Association's broad research program. New drugs, new methods of surgery, new and highly accurate diagnostic techniques are saving hearts and lives each day. Through the application of new heart heart knowledge, some forms of heart disease can now be prevented, some cured and practically all helped.

Medical scientists have great hopes for our hearts, they say, particularly if we apply some of the guards that heart study has established. Here are five:

1. Don't worry needlessly about "symptoms." See your doctor regularly for health and heart check-ups.

2. Control your weight. Look better, feel better, work better and live longer with normal weight.

3. Get enough rest. Regular rest relieves fatigue and lightens the work of your heart. Keep physically fit. Exercise regularly and moderately. Have fun, but act your age.

4. Ease up and relax. Don't let tension and anxiety rout your peace of mind.

5. Medical scientists do not yet have the knowledge they need to control the two disorders responsible for 90 percent of all cardiovascular diseases—hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure. To gain this and other vital information, they need an expanded program of research.

Now is the time to expand and speed research through increased heart contributions. Remember the benefits your Heart Sunday gifts have produced in the past—and give more generously than ever before.

4. Competition has been pretty tough in the dairy business. For example, out of every 100 farmers who delivered to New York State milk plants in 1948, how many dropped out by 1958? a) 107 b) 187 c) 25?

5. Whims of the fashion world have sent raw fur prices tumbling. For example, a good red fox pelt commands only: a) about 50 cents? was once worth $25, but now it b) about $1.50? c) about $10?

6. In newspapers language, a morgue is: a) a place for dead people? b) a county office where reporters gather material for obituaries? c) a file on people, places, and things?

7. If cows start eating soil or licking the farmer's overalls, chances are they need: a) more water? b) more roughage? c) more salt?

Answers: 1-b, 2-b, 3-b, 4-b, 5-a, 6-b, 7-a.

WINDOW HANGINGS IN A HOME

If properly chosen, window hangings when seen from the outside can give a home a feeling of friendliness and charm. They may even be chosen to suit the architecture of the house. All-though not all windows need to be treated alike, they should not be handled so differently that they attract unwanted attention. Before deciding what to do with the windows in one room, it is a good idea to consider harmonizing them with those of adjoining rooms. Some window treatments are especially attractive because they are dissimilar, however. And modern houses often have windows of different sizes and shapes, shaped openings or to overcome outtimes, by featuring a win- some other architectural problem.
