32 SENIORS OF NHS PLAN PG COURSES

Of a class of 95 seniors at Newark High School, only 14 plan for career institutions of higher learning next year, according to the annual senior census conducted by Principal Arthur E. Nash this week.

The check-up, in which seniors list their present plans for the coming school year, revealed that 32 of the class intend to go directly to work, if they can obtain jobs, while 32 expect to return for post graduate courses. Three were undecided and three others listed entering special, non-educational fields.

BILL WOULD AID COPS TO HOLD JOBS

By HARRY L. AVERILL

By the terms of a bill introduced this week, village policemen employed at the time State Civil Service rules were extended to the police department shall hold office without further examination. Another bill effecting local government would give boards of supervisors the power to establish a County Civil Service Commission of three members for prescribing and enforcing rules for classification of offices and employments in classified service, and for appointments, promotions and examinations therefor. Another local government measure showed up Saturday which would permit a first class town to regulate traffic, and designate certain highways as main arteries of travel outside of villages; and also permits a town board on petition and after a hearing to construct lateral sewers, drains, or water mains sewers and provide manner in which expense shall be assessed.

A bill came in Friday which would require the State Education Commissioner to apportion annually to each school district at least 75 per cent of total apportionment with such portion of the remainder thereof as he may find necessary for proper and efficient operation of schools and maintenance of adequate educational standards. This bill was introduced for the purpose of trying to put a stop to the present "spend to get" policy that is now the rule. The introducer told me that under his bill a district would receive 75 per cent of its allotment, but the district would have to satisfy the Commissioner that the district absolutely needed the other 25 per cent

Monday night the Assembly passed and sent over to the Senate a resolution setting Thursday, March 27, as the date for final adjournment, and Speaker Heck fixed Wednesday, March 14, as the date that the Rules Committee would take over all legislation.
