J&P Firm Gives 8,000 Rose Bushes To New York City

The gift to the City of New York of more than 8,000 specially selected and cultivated rose plants now included in the Parade of Modern Roses at the New York World's Fair, has been announced by Jackson and Perkins Company of Newark, New York, the world's largest rose growers and sponsors of the Parade of Modern Roses in the Gardens on Parade Exhibit, where millions of rose blooms of every type were shown to the Fair public both in 1939 and 1940.

Park Commissioner Robert Moses has already transmitted to Charles H. Perkins, president of Jackson and Perkins Company, the City's acceptance of this gift as a part of the whole Gardens on Parade layout to be retained permanently within Flushing Meadows Park after the demolition of the Fair buildings.

Mr. Perkins has also notified the Park Department that his company will in future years, send to this garden, plants of outstanding new varieties of roses developed in the Jackson and Perkins Research Department, without charge to the City. Thus, New Yorkers will be given a permanent opportunity to see the latest and most important rose developments as well as to enjoy from June to September of each year, the beauty and fragrance of several million rose blooms covering every important variety and color of climbing, tree and ordinary roses.

Since the Jackson and Perkins Company has been responsible for the development of many of the most important new hybrids in the rose field, the garden should form a nucleus of a city attraction which may, in time, equal the rose gardens of Hartford, Connecticut, Portland, Oregon, and other localities where the blooming of roses is the occasion for an annual festival.

6 Exhibits Shown At Palmyra Fair By Home Bureaus

Six exhibits are being shown this week at the Palmyra Fair by Home Bureau units. They will be found in the annex to the main building and will each show one project in the educational work of the bureau.

In Foods and Nutrition, the Macedon Center unit has a demonstration on the use of calcium foods for strengthening teeth and bony structure of the body.

Macedon No. 5 has an exhibit on correct working heights for the homemakers daily tasks.

Visitors will be urged to go in and try out various table heights to determine which one is best suited to lessen fatigue for the individual.

There are two exhibit-demonstrations on Care of Clothing. The Wallington unit is showing the making and use of blocks for knitted garments and Arcadia No. 2 shows how pressing pads are made and used for men's suits and other heavy garments.

The Marlon unit is showing glove making and Lyons will demonstrate the making of slip covers, with help on buying materials.

The titles and chairmen of the six exhibits are: Calcium for

Body Structure, Mrs. T. R. Bryant; Inches Make a Difference, Mrs. W. H. Allen; "So They'll Stay Like New", Mrs. David Jan-son and Mrs. George West; Glove Making, Miss Dora Westfall and Well Dressed Furniture, Mrs. Dwight Munn.
