BUSINESS WOMAN TERRORIZED

By STAFF REPORTER

Mrs. Marjorie Seeley, terrorized robbery victim of a gunman in Indiana Ave., Lackawanna, N. Y., on the afternoon Dec. 10, was told by her still under the scare of a private physician for back and face injuries.

The very attractive 45-year-old part-owner with her husband of Mamie's Restaurant located on Ridge Rd., said that she thought the two shots in the ceiling of the restaurant were the end of her life when the gunman walked in and ordered her to lay down on the floor. She was relating it as suggested by detectives. They demanded money. In a hurry according to Mrs. Seeley, on the way leaving, gave a shove to a customer who was standing in front of the door, grabbing her from behind, and pushing her to the floor. Mrs. Seeley said that the gunman was a man about six foot in height, fair brown complexion, black, young and told her to keep quiet.

After calling the police and getting the cash register drawer, she found that the robber had taken about $50 from the register. Mrs. Seeley called the police and the employees and customers
