African Editor Told Suburban Publishers Grab Big Share Of Minority Press Profits

Says Free Papers Printed In Sub-Urbs Get Benefit

By STAFF REPORTER

John Spicer of Cleveland, which is just Northeast of South Africa, visited the Buffalo Criterion at the invitation of Publisher Jerome Watson of that city.

He is Editor of the Times of Swaziland and is president of the Rotary Club of Mbabane. The population of Kenya is 240,000, 10,000 whites.

Mr. Spicer is a graduate of Kent State University and holds degrees in Political Science and Journalism.

Some of Mr. Spicer's activities and memberships are in the Commonwealth Association of Journalists, Rotary Club, Toastmasters Club, Kaimosi Friends Church and Kaimosi Friends Secondary School.

His remarks centered on the theme, travel in Africa, the United States, Kenya and Zambia.

Mr. Spicer is the co-author of "The Price of Freedom," and author of "Africa Today" and other poems.

He is a graduate of Ursuline College, is married and has four children.

Mr. Spicer, upon entering the Criterion's Press, commented, it was a thrill to see a paper printed and delivered by.

He was shocked when Publisher Watson stated: "Many papers are printed in the suburbs and found that when they came to Buffalo's inner-city they were dead. Many of these papers are lulling to create false impressions, by giving them the benefit of the doubt."

Mr. Northcutter further commented, "This is the same pattern used by South African publishers to keep their editor and the masses ignorant, Northcutter, who is one of nine masters of ceremonies, pointed out that "The Buffalo area is the only major city in the nation that is not being serviced by a paper big off the Black press. Once two papers, one a daily and one a weekly, were published in this area, but neither survived."

Harrisburg Frank E. Merriweather, II, of the Buffalo Criterion, is chatting with Editor Spicer of Africa, in the press section of the Criterion. He told the visitor that at present, only one-third of the plant is in operation because of the lack of capacity advertising.

Mr. Merriweather reasoned: "Anytime a business suit, Mr. Merriweather said, "is invited to attend a press conference and found that some editors are ignorant, and not aware of what they are helping to create through their ignorance, by trying them the benefit of the doubt."

Mr. Northcutter further commented, "This is the same pattern used by South African publishers to keep their editor and the masses ignorant, Merriweather, who is one of nine masters of ceremonies, pointed out that "The Buffalo area is the only major city in the nation that is not being serviced by a paper big off the Black press. Once two papers, one a daily and one a weekly, were published in this area, but neither survived."

Milwaukee — Milwaukee poster children, Audrey Jones, Erie Wilson, and Sharon Julie Eisenhower, during her tour of the Sickle Cell Center at Deaconess Hospital in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Eisenhower, younger daughter of President Nixon, praised the program at the Deaconess Hospital which started in 1968, before the disease drew national attention.

In 1971, federal spending for sickle cell programs totaled $1 million dollars. This year, the federal government is spending $2 million dollars. President Nixon has asked for $26 million in 1973.
