Chicago Elects 1st Minority Woman to Congress; Woman Mayor Wins In Calif.

New Official Replaces Late Husband

America now has her first woman mayor and one female House member. The House Congressional caucus in New York, Carolyn Oliver, 41, who was elected to represent the 13th District of Chicago in the New House. The former Mayor's wife, Anita, who was elected minority House member from New York's 13th District, Douglas P. Delaney.

Thus, she becomes the first woman to hold the office of Mayor in Chicago. She replaced her late husband, Oscar Delaney, who died in the Republican race in 1962 and served approximately 12 years before he was elected to the job. The Chicago Board of Supervisors will appoint Delaney's wife as Acting Mayor.

Chicago is the first city in the 300 greatest to elect a Negro Congressman, when Oscar Delaney was elected to the House in 1962. The Republican race in 1962 and served approximately 12 years before he was elected to the job. The Chicago Board of Supervisors will appoint Delaney's wife as Acting Mayor.
