Sports Sidelights

The right place in the major leagues.

In the 1970's, the New York original Celtics were forty-four games in a row, but did you know that the New York Basketball Club of that era, was eighty-eight consecutive games? The reason these old records do not exist, is simple because all the victories were not against professional football teams.

The Rev's, a powerful colored club, played against such clubs as the Cleveland Cavaliers, Memphis Tubs, and other such rag teams in the late 70's and the early 80's.

Their one player was "Fat" Justice, general, who was reported to have received a salary somewhere in the neighborhood of $20,000 per year, a record under in those days.

Baseball reference travel approximately six million per year, when attending a game.

The Atlanta Coast Conference is the most powerful and toughest college league (basketball) in the nation.

"Abe" Speranza (Hank Greenberg) was signed "Abe" factor in a contract, (baseball) and gained his name.
