Probe Ten Car Entries

Lowville Village Police, State Police and Lewis County Sheriff's Department are currently investigating a string of ten automobile break-ins which occurred December 3-4.

Nine occurred between the hours of 11:30 p.m. and 3 a.m. during the night of Monday and Tuesday, December 3-4. Five automobiles parked in the Kraft Foods parking lot on Utica Boulevard were entered and a total of six tape players, tools and miscellaneous other items were stolen. The cars were entered by either prying open windows or breaking the glass. One vehicle was entered by the burglars using a cutting torch to melt the rubber seal around a window.

On the same night, three cars were entered at the rear of the Western Auto Associate Store, State Street, and one at the rear of Oakley's Restaurant, Shady Avenue. The following night, the tenth vehicle was entered at the rear of Oakley's. Tape players and tools were removed from the cars.

Damage and stolen property is estimated at a few thousand dollars.

Rehabilitation On Sugar River

The Soil Conservation Service has completed the major portion of a stream rehabilitation project on Sugar River at Constableville. There will be some shrub-willow plantings in the spring, but the construction work is all completed. Obstructions were removed from the stream channel and over 1300 tons of heavy rock rip-rap was placed on the stream bank to protect it from stream erosion. In addition, all disturbed areas were seeded to prevent erosion.

The project was sponsored by Lewis County, and the district put a high priority on getting this worthwhile project completed.

Books In Review

by Sue Burgess

The story of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor unfolds in Christopher Hibbert's "Edward, the Uncrowned King" (St. Martin's Press, 1972).

Combined with text, this delightful book includes nearly 300 photos in a sort of family album style.

Prince Edward, son of King George V and Queen Mary, was born in June 1894. Though King George, a true baby loner, was joyed with the birth of his son, as Edward grew older his father became more and more displeased with the stubborn and independent nature emerging in his son. The author has noted it was the tragedy of Prince Edward's young life that he was not like his father though his father was determined to make him so.

At 19, Edward was sent as a naval cadet to Osborne, then onto Dartmouth. He then enjoyed his first taste of travel and yet while in Europe his innate shyness became painfully acute. His nervous mannerisms and lack of confidence, which unnerved King George, did seem to improve after he'd later completed undergraduate work in Oxford.

Though he was allowed only a staff appointment during WWI, he yearned to be on the front and his visits to field hospitals were a common occurrence.

His father, however, continued to treat him as a boy and in the coming years was hesitant to give Edward duties other than those as ambassador. At this, Edward did become a success in his father's eyes and his social conscience led to his being one of the most popular Prince of Wales that country had known.

But the main problem remained - the attitudes and judgments of his son more often than that displaced the King.

Then, enter Wallis Simpson and the start of a romantic story which continued on through nearly 40 years of matrimony.

A moving book full of history, insight, and hope for an often love-less world.
